SEAN P. MURPHY

Sean Murphy focuses his practice on commercial real estate transactions, development and leasing. Sean frequently represents owners, operators and lenders in the seniors housing and healthcare-related real estate industry. As outside counsel and as a principal, he has negotiated and closed upon the acquisition, sale and financing of numerous assisted living, skilled nursing, memory care and CCRC portfolios, medical office buildings and specialty healthcare-related assets throughout the United States. In addition to the healthcare asset class, he has handled transactions on behalf of multifamily, student housing and office owners, developers and institutional investors. Sean has also handled construction contracting matters and commercial real estate disputes as a principal, private practice lawyer and REIT General Counsel. In addition to his law degree, Sean earned a master's degree in real estate with a concentration in finance and development from Georgetown University in 2012. Duane Morris LLP is an Am-Law 100 firm with 850 lawyers concentrating in a wide-range of disciplines with lawyers as diverse as the clients they serve.

MICHELLE COHEN

At a time when security and compliance dominate corporate legal concerns, Michelle Cohen is a leading authority in data privacy, advertising and workplace matters for companies at the intersection of business and the internet. When clients find themselves facing government investigations and enforcement matters before federal or state agencies, including the Federal Trade Commission and state attorneys general, Michelle's litigation background and deep knowledge of her clients' industries enable her to resolve issues in the most expedient manner possible. As Personnel Partner at Ifrah Law and Vice President-Legal Affairs for a large non-profit organization, Michelle reviews and negotiates employment contracts, drafts and assesses adherence to codes of ethics and business conduct and counsels on how to maintain workplace compliance. Michelle has participated in investigations of workplace misconduct, including harassment and misuse of corporate resources.

Michelle also advises the largest online gaming and eSports companies on consumer protection, privacy and marketing matters. Michelle has over 25 years' experience defending individual and class action suits in the consumer protection context including dozens of Telephone Consumer Protection (TCPA) cases.
